CARE & MAINTENANCE FOR YOUR

Aliante Hanging Cocoon

The Aliante Cocoon is a great addition to any outside area, due to it being extremely comfortable, whilst also having a great look to it, with a variety of colours to choose from to ensure it fits your space perfectly. The frame is made of powder-coated steel, which promotes the longevity of the product and prevents rust from occurring.

CLEANING THE COCOON:

The Aliante Cocoon needs little to no maintenance where the actual cocoon is concerned, however, when exposed to coastal conditions which are very corrosive due to the salt in the air, the cocoon will need to be washed/hosed down with clean water. If you see signs of rust starting to show, this is more than likely surface rust from the salt or dirt settling on the cocoon and should be cleaned off when noticed to prevent the rust from spreading the actual item (remember, rust is like a virus and will spread if not stopped). In cases where you're unable to get the pod clean with water, use a mild soap (sunlight soap) to clean the pod. DO NOT use any products that have ammonia in them as they will affect the pod and discolour the wicker.

THE STAND:

The stand is made from stainless steel and is very durable, which means that cleaning of the stand will be minimal. Once again, coastal conditions may cause surface rust to occur due to the salt in the air. This needs to be cleaned off with a scotch-brite scourer and water or mild soap. When moving the stand around, be sure to pick it up, as opposed to dragging it along the ground.

PLEASE BE AWARE OF THE FOLLOWING:

- Keep the cocoon away from walls. People tend to swing the cocoon, which causes it to scratch against walls, causing the wicker to come loose. The wind also plays a part in this instance, where the cocoon swings against walls and causes the wicker to break/come loose. There is no guarantee against this as this is classed as negligence.
- The is able to withstand 150kg (Maximum). Please bare this in mind when utilizing the item.
- The cushion is washable (cold wash only and do not use anything with bleach or ammonia), should it get dirty. During the winter months, when the cocoon isn't used as frequently, put the cushion away to prevent mould and mildew from settling on the material.

Even though the Aliante Cocoon is an outdoor item, it will require maintenance from time to time, as does anything. Look after your cocoon and maintain it, and in turn you'll have the utility of it for years and years to come.
